

DOCTOR WHO

BATTLEFIELD

SERIES 7N 4 X 25 MINUTES

Sword and sorcery meet science fiction as the Tardis lands the world-famous Doctor and his companion Ace near the mystical site of an ancient battleground — and into the midst of another exciting adventure.

Deep in the heart of England's West Country strange happenings are afoot. Routine military manoeuvres are being disrupted by mysterious electrical interference, and a missile convoy is stranded. Brigadier Lethbridge-Stewart (an old ally of the Doctor) is called out of retirement to head up UNIT, the United Nations International Task Force, set up to investigate the affair. He arrives expecting to deal with a technical mishap, but finds himself confronting black magic and all-out war.

Warriors from another dimension, where Arthurian legend is grim reality, are preparing to use the ancient battleground once more. As they line up for their final, lethal conflict, the Brigadier, the Doctor and Ace join forces to combat knights, demons and a nuclear warhead ticking inexorably down towards zero . . .

This story also sees the return of Bessie, the Doctor's much-loved vintage car, and features guest artists Jean Marsh, Angela Bruce, Christopher Bowen and James Ellis.

70 GHOST LIGHT 3 X 25 MINUTES

Ace's worst nightmare comes true when the Tardis takes another trip through time back to Victorian England. A haunted house is the setting for another action-packed adventure for The Doctor and his teenage companion, as they encounter powers not of this world.

When Ace dreams of a haunted house, The Doctor promptly decides to take her to confront her 'worst place in the Universe'. The house is called Gabriel Chase.

Apart from an odd aversion to light, the master of the house, Josiah Solomon Smith is, by all appearances, a perfect Victorian gentleman. But his butler is a Neanderthal, and in the cellar they discover a spaceship. Smith, it seems, does not belong to Gabriel Chase, nor 19th-century England, nor does he belong on Earth.

Gabriel Chase has been invaded by powers from another world — alien powers that are running amok, infiltrating and threatening to assassinate Queen Victoria and overthrow the British Empire. To defeat them, The Doctor summons the ancient powers of a creature trapped in the cellar, only to discover that he has unleashed a tiger to catch a wolf . . .

In Ghost Light, Sylvester McCoy and Sophie Aldred are joined by an array of guest artists, including Sylvia Syms, Ian Hogg, Katherine Schlesinger and John Nettleton.

DOCTOR WHO

7M: THE CURSE OF FENRIC

4 X 25 MINUTES

After more than a quarter of a century of Daleks and derring—do, The Doctor seems as young as ever as he returns for this 26th season of action and adventure. Sylvester McCoy plays the mysterious Timelord, now in his 7th incarnation, in a story of brooding supernatural menace.

The Doctor and his current companion Ace (a West London teenager with a penchant for home-made explosives) step out of the Tardis to an Earth of menacing undercurrents and hidden fear. It is 1943, and at an isolated naval base an experimental code-breaking computer, the Ultima Machine, is being developed.

In the cold coastal waters a strike force of Russian commandos are preparing to paddle ashore. Their mission — to steal the Ultima. But lurking in the shadows under their dinghies is a wreck of a Viking dragon ship, rotted with age. Beside the wreck, something stirs.

Back at the naval base, the guards are awaiting the Russian commandos. They know they are coming, and want the Ultima Machine to be stolen. It's a trap. But there are traps within traps, and only The Doctor suspects the truth. The real danger is an ancient Viking curse. And it is about to reach its terrifying fulfilment.

Sylvester McCoy brings his own brand of sparkling humour to the world's favourite time-traveller, with Sophie Aldred as Ace, and guest stars Dinsdale Landen, Nicholas Parsons, Alfred Lynch, Janet Henfrey and Anne Reid.

But things aren't quite what they used to be in Perivale, and they find themselves instead investigating a series of mysterious disappearances. The hunt leads them on to another planet, where a race of ruthless, implacable monsters are preying on the helpless humans. The Doctor has never before encountered their like — they are the Cheetah People.

But a far greater enemy is lying in wait, an old acquaintance of The Doctor's, who has been looking forward to his arrival with impatience . . .
